J. L. SPEAR SELECTED AS SECRETARY OF SOUTHWESTERN INC.

Meeting Held at Radford Friday Selects Salem Man

At a meeting of the executive committee of Southwestern Virginia, Inc., held at Radford this afternoon, Irving Lewis Spear, clerk and treasurer of Salem, Va., selected for the position of permanent secretary.

Mr. Spear's selection was made after a long and careful consideration of a list of applicants. There were several strong men on the list but the committee feels that Mr. Spear comes nearest to meeting the requirements of such a large and important organization. He is a man of unusually pleasing personality, highly educated, aggressive, knows the duties of the position and is in close touch with Northern capital.

Mr. Spear was born in Amherst, Mass., June 7, 1894, and is therefore 31 years of age. He graduated from Amherst College, a classical school, in the class of 1917, with a B. A. degree, having specialized in economics. During his education he did a great deal of public speaking and carried off a number of prizes. He took graduate work at the Guaranty Trust Company, of New York City.

In 1917 he enlisted at Governor Island, N. Y. From there he was stationed at the medical supply bureau in New York City and later was sent to the Officers Training school for medical supply officers at Camp Meade, Md. While in training he broke down with pulmonary tuberculosis and for three years fought to regain his health. During his illness he met his wife, who was then a nurse at the hospital.

After returning to work he spent three years in charge of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association as its executive secretary. For the past two years he has been town clerk and treasurer at Salem under the city manager form of government. Mr. Spear is an Episcopalian.

Representative and Mrs. C. W. Higgins, of Sparta, N. C., were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Bryant for the past week, in their home in East Marion.

IN MEMORY

Richard Priddy Oakes, son of C. D. and D. S. Oakes was born January 5, 1907 and died April 22, 1925. He was stricken with flu about the middle of March, at the home of his uncle near Mt. Carmel, and in a few days pneumonia developed.

Lingering for more than three weeks, and bearing all his illness with patience, he was taken to Abingdon Hospital April 21. No operation was attempted, and he died the following day. All was done that earthly hands could do, but the Heavenly Father knows best.

Richard told his mother a few days before he died, that he had not led such a wicked life, that he had tried to be a good boy and to grow into manhood a pure and upright man, that the worst deed he ever did was going to the "picture show," and that he wanted to live, but if God took him, he was ready.

He was loved by all who knew him. He leaves to mourn their loss a father, mother, sister, five brothers and a host of friends.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. B. Brown of Marion. His remains were laid to rest in Greenwood Cemetery in the presence of a large and sympathizing crowd.

MEMORIAL SERVICES AT RIDGEDALE, VIRGINIA

On Sunday, May 31st, 1925, there was held a memorial service at Ridgetale Church. There was from twelve to fifteen hundred people present from all points of the compass, and some from West Virginia, Tazewell, Washington and Bland counties. Dinner was served on the ground and there was no lack of something to eat; everyone had an invitation to come and get something, and if there was one that went away without getting something it was their fault, for the Ridge can boost of clever people and good dinners.

The services were under the supervision of our preacher, Mr. Ross of Chatham Hill. We also had with us a preacher from the Sharon Circuit. Mr. Ross made a talk in the forenoon which was enjoyed by all that was fortunate to get in the church. In the afternoon we had a talk by Mr. Birmingham of Bland county, which was also much enjoyed by all. Then Mr. H. H. Cook made a short talk, which was very good. All through the day there was no disturbance. Everyone seemed glad to be with us renewing old acquaintance. The people of this community take this means to thank every one who was there for their courtesy. The friends and relatives gathered in the cemetery to decorate the graves of those that have passed from this earth beyond the mystic river where they dwell in a land beyond our vision.

The graves were beautifully decorated by loving hands, and while with flowers the mounds were covered, our minds traveled back to the days when those we loved were present with us, and oh how our hearts longed for their presence again, but our hopes and desires will not be fulfilled until we too must answer the summons as spoken in the book of Holy writ, "It is appointed unto man once to die then after that the Judgment." As we looked upon the vast assemblage of people gathered together, our spirits traveled back to the days when some of them were active and once our leaders and classmates in Sunday School it brings to our minds a sadness that can only be banished by the thought that we shall meet again.

This cemetery was started February 1899, today there is over three hundred graves there. It is located on a preeminence overlooking Rich Valley, with its beautiful verdant pasture lands, and Walker's Mountain as a back ground with its sublime beauty rising in its grandeur the sun kissing its top at the early dawn is a picture that no artist has been able to paint. Just between Ridgetale and Rich Valley there is another beauty of the hand work of our Creator, the North Fork of the Holston river fringed on either side with spruce pines and cedar, the water rippling on its course to the father of waters, this stream flowing through lowlands and through cliffs makes it one of the most beautiful rivers of Southwest Virginia, with all of this beauty of nature and the hospitality of its people. I would say not just as the poet has said, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia, but "Carry Me back to Ridgetale," where loving friends abide and love never grows cold.

Marguerite B. Richardson.

Mrs. Marguerite Baber Richardson was born in London, England in a large family all the members of which have shown more than ordinary talent and ability. An unusual number of the Baber family, including Mrs. Richardson, have been musicians. Edwin Baber, a noted writer of fiction, is a nephew of Mrs. Richardson.

In the year 1880-81 Mrs. Richardson taught music at Stonehill Jackson College. The next year she came to Marion College where from the first session she was recognized in the college and the town as a teacher of the first rank. No feature of the college recitals was more popular than her songs and it was not unusual to hear men from out of town say: "I came to commencement to hear Mrs. Richardson sing."

A letter from a teacher of these days expresses the regard in which she was held by her college associates: "When I knew her," writes Miss Caspari, "she was beautiful, and absolutely frank and truthful. I have never had a friend in whom I felt I could trust more entirely than in Maggie Baber."

In 1882 she was married to Mr. George W. Richardson, a prominent lawyer of the town. She kept up her teaching for a number of years after her marriage until her husband's growing business made it unnecessary for her to give the financial help which she efficiently and gladly gave during the early years of her married life.

She had been a devoted member of the Episcopal Church, but after her marriage she joined her husband's church and became at once an active worker in it, a leader in the choir and a teacher in Sunday School.

She was identified with all the organizations in Marion looking to the betterment of the town. It was under her leadership as Chairman of the Civic Committee of the Woman's Club that Clean-up campaigns were started and that garbage cans were placed on the street corners and that the Rest Room in the Court House was fitted up and reserved for women. As Chairman of the Red Cross during and after the war she rendered the type of efficient service which her nature was fitted to give.

Her care for the soldiers at the Day Clinic was given up only when her physical condition made it impossible for her to keep up the varied activities in which she engaged. She gave the best that was in her of her time and means to every good work in the town. She was a good neighbor, loyal to her friends and charitable in every way.

This charity was exercised in a beautiful way toward the infirm and aged. Judge's Richardson father was an honored guest in her home during the last years of his life and her untiring regard for his comfort was one of the many evidences of the wideness of her sympathy and love for those who looked to her for help.

Perhaps to those who knew her best the quality which stands out most prominently in her life is Sincerity. Sham and hypocrisy were impossible to her. Pretense in her presence became a sorry thing, indeed. She was never content with second-rate effort. Nothing she undertook was good enough until it was as good as she could possibly make it.

Her two children, Mrs. John Hufford of New York City and Mr. Geo. Allen Richardson of Plainfield, New Jersey, in whose success she found such pride and happiness, and her sister Mrs. Hill who was a guest in her home, are not alone in their bereavement. A wide circle of friends feel with them in the passing of Mrs. Richardson a deep loss.

WHERE ADVERTISING GOES. The man that advertises is sowing seed, and when and where will be the harvest is what no man can tell. A good illustration of the truth of this is to be found in an incident that happened in our office this week.

We published a short notice a week or so ago in regard to the booklet that has been issued by the Standard Oil Company, entitled "Know Your Own State." On Wednesday morning we received the following letter:

Worcester, Mass. June 8, 1925. Gentlemen:— I have twice visited your State and intend to make my third auto trip within a few days, and should be very glad to receive a copy of the book referred to in the clipping in your paper.

Yours truly, F. E. DODGE.

This is from one of the largest printing companies of Massachusetts, and is a good illustration of what a little advertising will do and how far it will go. Southwest Virginia is now about to engage in an advertising propaganda, and who can say how much it will bring to us. What we want to do for this section, the best part of Virginia, is to let people know what we have to offer to them, to tell of the beauties of our scenery, healthfulness of our climate, and great natural resources. No one can tell where a simple circular or a photographic scene will go, but some day it will return, "some fifty-fold some a hundred-fold."

What is true of this little book is just as true of every man's business; advertising is the life-blood of business—it means success or failure. Mr. Business Man, which road are you traveling?

GREATEST RECEPTION EVER RECEIVED IN HIS CAREER

President Coolidge, homeward bound from the greatest reception he ever received in his political career was traveling today eastward towards Washington, there to stay but two weeks before embarking on a summer vacation that will keep him in New England until after Labor Day.

During the twenty-seven hours that he stayed in the Twin Cities of Minn., where he featured the hundredth anniversary of the first Norwegian settlement in America, President Coolidge witnessed the largest turnout in his honor that he has ever experienced. Approximately 60,000 people were jammed into the race track of the state fairgrounds to hear his speech, every street of St. Paul and Minneapolis that he traversed was lined solidly with citizens of the northwest.

The Coolidge invasion of the wheat belt was a personal triumph in two ways. First he successfully demonstrated his popularity in that section of the country regarded as a LaFollette stronghold, and second, he wiped out the odium of his only attempt to address the people of the Twin Cities.

In 1922 Mr. Coolidge, then vice president, visited Minnesota in behalf of the re-election of Senator Frank B. Kellogg, competing with an exhausting heat and the prospect of a horse race he was booed down and never completed his speech. Yesterday 60,000 people jammed the fair grounds and oblivious to a howling wind and an intermittent rain, cheered the president to the echo through out a 45 minute address. On his way to the fair grounds, sixteen miles of streets were packed with flag waving, enthusiastic citizens.

The presidential party is returning to Washington aboard the same Baltimore and Ohio special that brought them out to St. Paul.

EXTENSION DIVISION TO DISTRIBUTE GOVERNMENT EXPLOSIVE FOR AGRICULTURAL PURPOSES

The Department of Agricultural Engineering of the Extension Division, Virginia Polytechnic Institute will handle the distribution of Virginia's allotment of the new salvaged war explosive "Pyrotol" for agricultural purposes.

Two car loads of this explosive were distributed the past winter by the department. The users have been very well satisfied with this explosive and a considerable number have already placed orders for more this fall. The allotment this year will be 200,000 pounds, and present indications are that this amount will be taken up quickly.

Experience shows that orders must be placed early if the explosive is to be delivered soon enough for use during the fall and winter months. The department is, therefore, starting early this year and will begin taking orders at once. It is not necessary that money be sent with orders at this time, but all farmers are urged to see their county agents or write to the department indicating the amount wanted. Shipments will be made in August and September.

Pyrotol is a comparatively safe high explosive, has no toxic effects, and will give good results in all ordinary temperatures. A cartridge of Pyrotol weighs about 6 ounces and is approximately equivalent in strength for agricultural blasting to the usual cartridge of dynamite which weighs 8 ounces, that is—in a 50 pound box of dynamite there are 100 cartridges, while in each box of Pyrotol there are about 160 cartridges, each one of which is approximately equivalent in strength to a cartridge of 20 percent dynamite. Pyrotol can be completely detonated by a number six cap of either the electric or the fuse type. A supply of caps will be sent free with each order while they last. No fuse, however, is supplied.

The explosive will be furnished the farmers at cost of preparation and freight. The cost f. o. b. distribution point will be $8.75 per 100 pounds. Freight charges can be saved where sufficient orders are secured in a county for a minimum car of 10,000 pounds.

Orders will be taken care of in the order in which they are received. Farmers, therefore, should place their orders at once. Purchases will be limited to 1,000 pounds to any one individual. For further information, write or see county agent, Lee M. Cole, Jr.

SPRINKLING LAWS

Attention is called to the ordinance regulating the sprinkling of lawns during the day. The citizens are asked to observe this ordinance which prohibits the use of water for sprinkling of lawns or gardens between the hours of 7:00 a. m. and 4:00 p. m. Tho' there is a sufficient supply of water it behooves the users to cooperate with the Water Department in carrying out this ordinance.

CONCERT

HONORS WON BY GRADUATES OF MARION HIGH SCHOOL

Marion has cause to feel proud of the record of several of its high school graduates, who are attending colleges and some of whom have graduated this session from the various schools they have attended.

Among those receiving honors, recently, are Misses Mary Hull and Lucille Shankling, of Marion, who graduated last week from Hollins College. Each of these young ladies was one of four to receive the highest honors given by the Faculty of Hollins. The other honors were divided between a representative of Lynchburg High School and one for Marion, Penn. This is quite an honor for our schools as the honor is based upon the best record for all of the work completed during the entire four years spent in Hollins.

Mr. Ralph Repass, has been elected President of the Junior Class in Emory and Henry College, while Mr. Stuart Staley was elected Vice-President of the Sophomore Class. Miss Anna Bryant received honors during the year in Brenau College, while Miss Evelyn Sprinkle was given a position of honor in Agnes Scott College.

Reports have come in from several colleges showing that the representatives of Marion are doing standard work in the majority of schools and colleges the students of Marion High School have been attending.

There's sound logic in the reasoning of hundreds of thousands of motorists who buy "Standard" Gasoline because they have faith in the products of an old-established business.

They're right. You can't learn all there is to know about the refining of petroleum products in two or three years. It takes long years of experience. We have been in the game for two generations and we're still learning and still improving our methods and our merchandise.

Concrete conveniences like those shown above make any farm a more efficient business place. They save the farmer's time, make his work easier, let him work quicker, and make his place more profitable. Concrete work on the farm does not cost a lot of money. First cost is usually very low because the farmer can do most of the work himself. But first cost is the only cost, because concrete never wears out; never needs expensive repairs; never burns, rots, rusts or decays.

Plan now to put in those improvements you have always wanted. The few dollars you spend will be a small price to pay for the convenience and service they will give you. Ask any Security Cement dealer how you can do it yourself; or write to the manufacturer for helpful information and practical working plans.

Pains

Very Severe

"I suffered from womanly troubles which grew worse and worse as the months went by," says Mrs. L. H. Cantrell, of R. F. D. 9, Gainesville, Georgia.

"I frequently had very severe pains. These were so bad that I was forced to go to bed and stay there. It seemed to me my back would come in two.

CARDUI

For Female Troubles

"I taught school for a while, but my health was so bad I would have to stay out sometimes. This went on till I got so bad I didn't know what to do.

"One day I read about the merits of Cardui, and as I had some friends who had been helped by it, I thought I would try it. I began to get better after I had taken half a bottle. I decided to keep on and give it a thorough trial and I did. I took in all about 12 bottles and now I am perfectly well. I do not suffer any pain and can do all my housework."

At All Druggists

What Biology Can Do For Me

(The following paper was prepared by Mr. W. W. Hurt, a son of Mrs. W. W. Hurt of Marion, who is a student at Emory and Henry College. Mr. Hurt received ninety-eight in his Biology studies, and has a very high standing at the College.)

Biology may be defined as the Science of Life and Living things. The biologist looks up himself as a seeker after truth, as one striving to get a glimpse behind the veil of the mystery of life. If he is partially successful in his efforts, he comes to have a vision of himself and his fellows as but one kind of organism in the midst of an almost infinite variety of other organisms, some of which bear unmistakable resemblances to himself.

First: Biology can show me the relations of plants and lower animals to man and the ways in which they help him. Let us begin with the lowest form which are one cell organisms and usually designated by the word germs. To the majority of people germs are a most horrible and terrifying thing. The truth is that ninety-eight per cent of all bacteria is helpful to man and upon which our very existence depends. Even such simple things as the souring of milk and the rising of yeast bread is caused by bacteria. Sponges and corals as the many other plants we use for countless needs as clothing, food, oxygen, medicine we can see through the light of Biology more distinctly their use and their relation to us. The common earth worm is an immense benefit to man because of the good imported to the soil. Food such as oysters, crabs etc., are found as we climb higher in the scale of life. Reptiles so repulsive to some people are of use. For women carry alligator hand bags with them where every they go. Birds for their plumage and food. And most important our live stock.

Let us now look at the relation of these organisms in relation to each other, which is usually termed the Web of Life. Many do not see the relation of one organism to another. Let us take an example and assume that because of some unfavorable conditions in a pond during their breeding season the black bass decreased markedly. The pickerel, which devour young bass must feed more exclusively upon insects. The decreased number of bass would relieve the drain upon the crawfishes, which are eaten by the bass; crayfishes would accordingly increase and prey more heavily upon the water insects. The combined attack of pickerel and crayfishes would cause insects to decrease and the number of pickerel to fall away because of decreased food supply. Meanwhile the bull heads which are general feeders and which devour water insects, might feed more exclusively upon mollusks because of the decrease in the former, but would probably decrease also because of the falling off of their main article of diet. The bass would soon recover their numbers because of the decreased pickerel and bull heads, the enemies of their young. Thus practically all organisms are dependent upon other for their life. Another example is the life history of the levir fluke a parasite which lives in the gall bladder of sheep. Large numbers of eggs are fertilized and given off in the bile duct and passes through the digestive tract. Rain hatches the eggs from which emerges a tiny ciliated aquatic larva, and if lucky finds a snail into whose body it bores. Here it develops and bores through to the outside to deposit itself on grass where sheep may swallow it. From the stomach it seeks its original abode the gall bladder.

It is better that nature is so arranged otherwise some species would be entirely wiped out and great numbers of others would exist. Organisms are also kept more on the alert and the most fit propagate the species.

Some call the relationship and dependency nature. But the study of Biology has pointed out clearly to me that there must be some divine power behind these, which created them in such a way as to form the great web of life and also man's needs, and this is God.

Aside from the above mentioned we derive other benefits. By the study of animals we may improve our own characters. No better form of faithfulness is found anywhere than that exhibited by the dog to his master. Many species sacrifice their life in order to propagate the race. Even society may take lessons from the lowly ants. Bees sterilize their food by stinging it. The squid throws out a smoke screen for protection as was similarly exhibited in the World War. Such can be learned by studying the lower organisms.

Second: Biology can lead me to one of the highest professions; the study of the human body. Only through the study of the bodies structure and function can we learn its needs and the way in which it should be cared for. The study of Biology can lead me into more hygienic habits, and to combat the diseases so disastrous to mankind. There is none greater than the physician who sacrifices his own pleasures and health for the comfort and health of others.

Third: It can restore the past and strengthen my belief in christianity. Through the eyes of Biology one is able to look back into the remote past. Skeletons and fossils found in caverns and strata show us that man, as well as the animals about him, have undergone a marked change. Prehistoric man dwelled in caves, and his food supply depended upon his prowess as a hunter. A great difference is found today. If not for evolution how can we account for man's position today. The five distinct races of men no two of which are alike most certainly have been a process of evolution encouraged by the ever changing environment. The horse of long ago was every little larger than a dog and possessed five toes. Thousands of like examples could be given. Those who criticize evolution go to their homes and set down to a meal of fresh vegetables, fruits, meat and bread. Little do they realize that all these are the products of evolution. For at one time did not all these grow and live in a wild state, and through constant effort they have been made to evolutionize into their present state. Hence the ones who show such antagonism against evolution only display their ignorance of the subject. Evolution does not mean that we sprang from a minute organism or ape. A good definition of Evolution is given by Kellogg, "Evolution means outrolling, unfolding. It means a reasonable, satisfying enabling, conception of life, a conception that gives life infinite promise. The great plan of life has been slowly and continuously unrolled. The great possibilities of life have been steadily unrolled. And this unrolling and unfolding is evolution."

In Biology all roads lead to evolution. The scientific man should find truth and God in science, and realize that evolution when rightly taught is a great factor in strengthening the Christian Faith. Shales Mathews says "It is only those who are ignorant both of the origin and nature of the Bible and of the facts in our universe who are terrified lest science should make them lose their faith."

Evolution is not a contradiction to God's principles as set forth in the Bible, but it is God's way of revealing himself. Kelven a great scientist and christian says, "If we think strongly enough we are forced by science to a belief in God."

Fourth: Biology can raise my standard of living. Through the study of eugenics one of the main branches of Biology. We have been able to raise the standard of living of many plants and animals. Take for example the strawberry. In its wild state it is no larger than the tips of the little finger and has through a process of careful selection and breeding been reproduced into a berry ten times its original size. Likewise other plants and animals have been greatly improved.

But now let us take the human race. Eugenics here has shown me a very alarming fact, for instead of improving himself man is allowing himself to become degraded. In many states amalgamation of the white with other races in entirely within the law. No race is the equal of the white hence; this amalgamation tends to lower. A mixed breed exhibits no better qualities than is found in the pure races, and in almost every case worse. In other words the amalgamation of two races lowers the standard of both. Take as an example Mexico. Mexicans are a mixture of Spanish, English and Indian. The nation has made very little progress, and the natives qualities and characteristics are most undesirable. So will be the United States in a few years with respect to the white and black races. The number of mulattoes is increasing each day, and among these are found a large per cent of illegitimate children. From the above it is evident that measures must be taken prohibiting the inter marriage of the two races and this can only be pointed out by men who have given the subject a thought.

Some vain idea has entered into society of the highest and most aristocratic that it is unpardonable to give birth to more than one or two children. While on the other hand the lower classes are reproducing very rapidly. The germ plasm of these lower classes does not equal that of the higher; therefore they do not inherit the finer characteristics neither are they able to support and educate their children as they should. The majority of criminals, cripples and feeble minded result from this class. This is another problem for serious thought. People do not realize these facts, and it is only through the study of Biology that we better our country along such lines.

Four to Two.

Marion added another game to the list of victories, on the home diamond last Saturday, coming out on the long end against Lebanon 4 to 2. It was a well played game, both teams being on their toes from the first inning to the last stanza.

Lebanon in the first inning was retired in quick order, but 4 batsmen facing Brown, two of which went by the strike-out route. Marion in her half done no better. Brown done a little better in the second. Lebanon going down in 1, 2, and 3 order. Marion in her half came back strong, Sturgill opening with a hit, Brown hitting the air three times, McKaughan, to aveng Brown, came across with a hit, scoring Sturgill, Gose hit, followed by a hit by Abe Lincoln, McKaughan tallying. Hutton hit a pretty one scoring Abe. Slater got a goose egg for ending one of the best stanzas in the game.

In the third Lebanon again counted 1, 2, and 3 and out, Marion taking the same dose.

Kahle opened the fourth with a bingle, Counter going out on a fly to center, Berry taking up the cudgel and bringing in Kahle, Lebanon's first tally, Weaver fanning the air and Robinson going out at first.

Marion not to be outdone tallied one more the their half.

From the fifth to the beginning of the ninth both teams shut up as tight as clams leaving no loop holes even for a grain of sand to get thru, making it a pitchers battle that was good to see.

The ninth was opened by Gose with a fly to center but was nailed by McKaughan, Kale next drove a pretty one for a three sacker followed by Counter's 2 sacker, Berry up, a bad man at bat made things look bad for the home rooters, but Kahle on third was desperate and eager to tally was caught between Slater and Baughman on third and run down making two outs, easing the strain. Berry poled a long one to right center scoring Counter but was put out going to second.

Both pitchers were well supported, some of the batted balls looking like sure hits, but by the good foot work and judgement of the fielders in covering their positions checked off yells in the making and robbing the batters of high per centages.

By Innings:

Question: Why do all of the great racing cars use Valve-in-Head engines?

Answer: Because this type develops the greatest speed and power. All first place winners of the Indianapolis 500 mile race since 1912 have had Valve-in-Head engines. Buick pioneered the Valve-in-Head engine in 1904 and has used it ever since because it is more powerful, more economical and more dependable.
