

Educational Relief Projects Offered

Under the Civil Works Relief program persons over 16 years of age are offered an opportunity to take courses in a proposed plan for adult education.

High school graduates, and other adults interested in any subject should communicate with E. E. Copenhaver, division superintendent of schools, at his office.

Ordinarily, ten persons will be required for a particular course, but in certain remote communities, smaller classes may be organized.

The twofold object of the CWA in offering to finance these projects is to afford opportunity for illiterate adults, and other persons who wish to do work in general academic courses, and also, to give relief to needy, unemployed teachers who are certificated to teach in Virginia.

Interested Smyth County people are urged to cooperate in the establishment of study groups.

A recent communication from state relief headquarters states the money for this work is in Richmond and will be disbursed in each division just as soon as the division superintendent, in cooperation with relief officials and other interested parties and organizations, will get the work started.

In Court

The matter of those government coats from the C C C camps at Hungry Mother came formally before Squire Johnston Saturday night, the 9th.

Walter Kitts of Groseclose had two of them which he testified he bought from a C C boy. Howard Petty had another, which he bought from his uncle, Harrison Wolfe, and which Harrison testified he bought from one of the boys.

Squire Johnston ordered the coats returned to the government, which was done, and the officers at the camp were notified to return the property which may be offered for sale by C. C. boys.

On Tuesday Squire Johnston tried the case in which Leslie Johnston, a boy, had William Johnston, a man, arrested for an alleged blow with a water dipper at a thrashing on the Charley Stump place in Porter valley back in August. Mr. Johnston admitted striking Leslie but pleaded that he was provoked by the latter. The Squire fined each $2.50 and costs and let it go at that.

Will Chasey, clinic man, was arrested for drunk.

Dr. Z. V. Sherrill

Following an operation in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Richmond, where he had been a patient for several weeks, Dr. Z. V. Sherrill, one of the best known and most highly esteemed physicians and citizens of Marion and Southwest Virginia, passed away in the above named institution Monday morning, the 11th inst., at 5:40 o'clock. News of his demise, received here shortly after the end came, was a great shock to the entire town, and caused wide-spread sorrow.

Zebulon Vance Sherrill was born in Caldwell county, North Carolina, the son of William Wesley and Mary (Hartley) Sherrill. He was 71, having been born January 3, 1862. His boyhood years were spent in that section, and there he acquired his early education. The school facilities of that time were meager indeed, but he applied himself so industriously that at the early age of fifteen he was serving as a teacher for the smaller children, while he continued to apply himself to the acquirement of such of the higher branches as were available. Filled with ambition and a determination to secure an education, he next attended Oak Hill Academy in Grayson county, Virginia. Then followed more teaching, the while he continued his private studies with assiduity.

Dr. Sherrill was strictly a self-made man. Possessed of boundless energy and a seemingly infinite capacity for hard work, he lost no opportunity to improve himself intellectually. Having decided to enter the medical profession, he began the study of medicine under Dr. Baker, then a prominent physician of the Riverside section of this county, as was the customary procedure in those days, when medical colleges were few and far apart. Later on he studied at the old Medical College of Virginia, in Richmond. At that time, the requirements for the practice of medicine were very lax.

In fact, Dr. Sherrill himself has been heard to remark that any one could get a pair of saddle-bags and practice medicine, and so was characteristic of him he was not to be satisfied with anything but the best, and so he soon gave up this practice and entered the medical department of the University of Louisville, from which he was graduated with the degree of doctor of medicine in 1888.

After his graduation, he located in Bland county, Virginia, for a while. Later, he went to West Virginia, but soon returned to Bland county and resumed his work there. From Bland he came to Marion, having accepted an appointment as a member of the medical staff of the Southwestern State Hospital, where he remained for five years. Resigning this position, he located in Marion and engaged in the practice of his profession, in which he was signally successful, and here he spent the rest of his days.

Dr. Sherrill was thrice married. His first wife was Miss Freelove Cole, of this county. Following her demise, he was married to Miss Sadie LeGrande, of Charlotte county, Virginia, who passed away some fifteen years ago. After her death, he was united in marriage to Miss Carolyn A. Clark, of Marion, by whom he is survived. The third Mrs. Sherrill is also a physician by profession, and together they practiced the healing art building up a large and devoted clientele. Although he had no children of his own, Dr. Sherrill took into his home at various times children who were relat-

Hungry Mother Parkway Assured as State Project

Construction of the Hungry Mother Parkway between Marion and State Park No. 3 as a state C W A project is assured, according to advice received by the local civil works administrator's office from the state office at Richmond.

Construction will be carried out by men from four counties, Smyth, Washington, Grayson and Wythe. Smyth's quota is 216 men; Washington's is 100, and quotas for Grayson and Wythe, not yet definitely known here, should bring the total number of men to about 600.

In the meantime, W. M. Hull, civil works administrator for the county, is continuing with the general county program. Since last week, when we announced the start of projects on which 115 men were put to work, another has been started—it being sanitary and street work at Henrytown on which 11 men are employed and the total cost of which will run to about $1000.

Although word of such approval had not reached the local administrator Tuesday, daily papers carried a dispatch from Richmond saying that the state administration had approved for Smyth county: $25,589 for road work, 51,120 man hours; the Henrytown, Sugar Grove wall and Marion school ground project already listed here this week and last, and "Marion sidewalks, $4,579.20, 3,672 man-hours."

No application for any Marion sidewalks has been made and this last part of the report was in error. Important Public Works Administration news also came Tuesday when Colonel James A. Anderson, engineer of the state advisory, announced that he had just received a message from Secretary Ickes, to go right ahead with the public works program.

As announced by Secretary Ickes, the state will contribute $100,000 to the project.

Included, of course, may be several for Marion, certainly at least two, the sewerage and municipal building projects.

Close Work

John Alexander and Mrs. Alexander had just got back from a trip along the Rialto Monday night, the 11th, at about ten minutes of nine and Lena accompanied John into the basement below the Marion Clothing Company to watch John fire the furnace.

John fired away. Every time he heaved in a shovel of coal Lena thought she heard something. "There's somebody upstairs in the store," she said. "Nav," said John, "I don't hear anything."

John finished firing and they went up. "Better take a look, John," said Lena.

John got on the porch in back of the store and struck a match. He saw a window broken up. "My goodness," said John, or words to that effect, "they're in here all right. Lena, call the police."

Mrs. Alexander dashed around toward the rialto through the Piggy Wiggly Parking lot. She was doing some real calling. It would have raised the dead had there been any handy.

John stood at the window wondering just what to do. While he was still wondering there as a crash and a man's body hurtled through. He ran and fell, got up and ran on, with John paddling after. John got a pretty good look at him as he ran. John is a famous runner, but the other man was better.

The man disappeared heading south along the tracks.

Investigation showed that he had broken into the wash room of the clothing store and was busy with a knife in cutting out the lock on the door leading into the store.

Mr. J. M. Hughes of Washington, D. C., was a business visitor in Marion several days of last week.

Mr. C. S. Coott, of Bristol, was a visitor here last week.

Mr. Ross G. Baylor

Ross Glenn Baylor, aged 56, was fatally injured Sunday, December 10th, at about 6 p. m. when struck by a hit-and-run car on the Lee highway near the eastern limits of Marion.

Mr. Baylor was walking to town from his home in Royal Oak and was on the left side of the road, near the edge of the paving. Captain Jacob Frank and Joe Sechler, Jr., who were in an automobile coming west behind Mr. Baylor, said he was apparently standing still when struck hard by a light car approaching from the west.

The car stopped. Captain Frank jumped out of his own automobile and waved down an approaching bus. The driver of the death car saw the army man in his uniform, jumped back into his own machine and darted out of sight.

Captain Frank put Mr. Baylor in his car and hurried him to the hospital where, despite all treatment he died at about 9 o'clock.

Captain Frank and Mr. Sechler were not able to furnish a very detailed description of the hit-run car and did not get the license number. Officers searched for it, but fruitlessly.

Mr. Baylor was born at Tazewell, Tenn., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Craig Baylor of that place. In 1898 he came to Marion, where he engaged in the clothing business until 1912 with his uncle, the late Mr. Ben Baylor, who in that year sold his business and moved to Kingsport, Tennessee. Mr. Baylor continued in the clothing business until his death, in late years conducting his own business as representative for several tailoring houses.

In 1908 he married Miss Mary Copenhaver, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John S. Copenhaver, and a member of one of the most prominent families in Smyth county.

He is survived by his widow and two sons, Mr. R. Staley Baylor of Greensboro, N. C., and Curtis H. Baylor, a student at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, one daughter, Mrs. Ed Baylor of New Tazewell, Tenn., and one sister, Mrs. L. J. Jennings of the same town.

Mr. Baylor was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of Marion.

Funeral services were conducted at the family home in Royal Oak Tuesday, the 12th, at 10:30 a. m., by the Rev. E. H. Copenhaver, assisted by the Rev. E. A. Shugart a brother-in-law, the Rev. T. J. Eskridge of Chilhowie.

Burial was in Round Hill cemetery.

It's Camp Jaccard Now

Lieutenant Paul Jaccard, U. S. A. who brought the first detachment of C C C men into Smyth county and organized the Sugar Grove Camp, left last week, having been ordered back to duty at Fortress Monroe.

He was extremely popular with the C C C boys under him and they were united in naming the camp "Camp Jaccard" in his honor, and "Camp Jaccard" it will remain, at least as far as the boys are concerned.

C C Center Opened

Mrs. J. L. Thornton has turned here store building on the Rialto into a reading and writing room and social center for C C boys from the camps when they are in town. Her generous act fills a need that had been really felt.

The center needs books, magazines and other reading matter. Every citizen who will take Mrs. Thornton some recent magazines or some books will be doing a real service.

Corn Processing Tax Remains At Five Cents

The five cents per bushel processing tax on corn, effective since its imposition on November 5th, will remain at that rate instead of being increased to twenty cents as provided for in the original regulations. A supplement to the field corn regulations which has the effect of exempting certain producers of field corn for making affidavits that the corn is being processed for their own use and that of their own households, as required under preset regulations, was also approved. The exemption applies to producers who have their own corn processed at the rate of not more than one bushel per week for their own use. Millers who process the corn are authorized to make at the end of each month, a sworn statement that they have not knowingly processed more than one bushel of corn in any one week for the use of single producer himself or his household. The supplement was issued as a result of requests from Southern localities where producers grind their corn at community mills in lots of a bushel or less per week for their own consumption.

The Yule Log—Symbol of Christmas

In memory of the pleasant old custom in "Merry England" the 1933 Christmas Seals depict the great ceremony of bringing in the Christmas log.

Mr. Ed Baylor of New Tazewell, Tenn., and one sister, Mrs. L. J. Jennings of the same town.

"Peace on earth—Good will toward men" sang the chorus from house to house on Christmas Eve to family and guests gathered about the glowing yule log.

They remind everyone who pastes the little stickers on mail and package that the old, old real custom of Christmas is not gone, and may still reign in the hearts of everyone who shares the gifts of health by using Christmas Seals throughout the month of December.

If you need more of these little stamps, please call your local chairman Mrs. Z. T. Atkins, or Mrs. W. W. Hurt, County Chairman.

Deer Caught

Blaine Waddell, Howard Goodpasture, W. G. Wygal and Billy Wygal caught a young doe in the Mt. Carmel neighborhood last Saturday morning, December 9th. The deer was a small one, weighing about 150 or 160 pounds. It had been shot in the right side and was weak from loss of blood so the boys were able to catch it easily without using a dog.

They took the animal to Dr. Wright who is caring for it. It is now able to eat and get up and down, and will probably pull through. It is not known where the deer came from, but Dr. Wright thinks that possibly it is one of three that escaped from the hospital several months ago.

Rubber Gloves Recommended In Handling

Richmond, Virginia, December 11—During the first eleven months of this year there were forty-eight cases of tularemia or "rabbit fever" in Virginia, exactly the same number reported for the corresponding months of 1932. However, fifty-seven cases occurred in December of last year, thus bringing the final report up to 105 cases for 1932—over fifty per cent of the cases in the last month. We are now beginning that last month of 1933, and if a few simple precautions are observed by hunters and all persons handling rabbits, we may prevent a re-occurrence of last year's sudden increase. The main precaution to avoid danger is the use of rubber gloves in handling rabbits.
Tularemia was first identified and named by Dr. G. W. McCoy, of the U. S. Public Health Service, who discovered the disease in a ground squirrel in Tulare County, California. Deer, flies, ticks, as well as sheep and sometimes birds have been known to carry the infection, but the chief trouble maker is the wild rabbit. This accounts for the fact that in December, when the hunting season is at its height, the number of cases increases.
Infection may enter any slight abrasion on the hand or elsewhere. Though the consequences are rarely fatal, the patient is often ill for several weeks and sometimes it takes as long as six months or a year to recover completely. Beginning with a headache, the disease takes the form of chills and fever, a sensation of fatigue, pains and sometimes vomiting. The glands under the arms swell and become painful and the skin over these glands becomes red and tender. The place of infection is shown almost invariably by a small spot with raised edges and a punched-out appearance.
Reasonable care may avoid these serious consequences. Hunters should bag only these rabbits shot on the run as these that are unable to run are probably sick and should not be handled. However, to avoid all possible danger, the hunter, the dresser, or anyone handling the animal before it is cooked, should be protected by rubber gloves.
There is no danger from eating well done rabbit meat as thorough cooking kills all tularemia germs.

NEW FORD V-8 for 1934

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The New Ford V-8 for 1934 is now on display at the showrooms of Ford dealers. Surpassing even the great Ford of 1933 in economy, beauty and comfort, it is truly the car of this modern age—the culmination of thirty years Ford progress. It combines the proved performance of the V-8 cylinder engine with two important new features—Dual Carburetion and perfected Clear-vision Ventilation. See this car today and drive it at the first opportunity.

OUTSTANDING IMPROVEMENTS IN THE NEW FORD V-8

BETTER PERFORMANCE. Greater power, new speed, quicker acceleration, smoother performance, more miles per gallon especially at higher speeds, and quicker starting in cold weather—all these result from the new dual carburetor and dual intake manifold. New water-line thermostats enable the engine to warm up more quickly and to maintain an efficient operating temperature. Added engine refinements reduce oil consumption, further improve operating economy and reduce maintenance costs.

NEW VENTILATION SYSTEM permits clear vision, prevents drafts and provides desired amount of fresh air in any weather. Individual control for front and rear side windows. When ventilation is desired the window glass is raised to the top. Then the handle is given an additional half-turn. This slides the glass back horizontally to form a narrow slot. Through this slot air is drawn out by the forward motion of the car. This simple ventilation system maintains draft-free circulation, insures passenger comfort, prevents fogging windshield in cold or stormy weather. Both windshield and cowl ventilator can be opened to supply additional air needed for comfortable warm-weather driving.

DISTINCTIVE NEW APPEARANCE enhanced by the newly designed chromium-plated radiator shell and grille, new hood louvers, new hub caps. The ceremony took place at the Central Christian church at Huntington, W. Va., in the presence of a number of close friends. Mr. and Mrs. Cruey are both natives of this city; Mrs. Cruey is the daughter of Rev. W. G. Brashear.

The church was beautifully decorated for the wedding with palms, ferns and chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids were Miss Lillian Blume and Miss Opal Wellman. The former was dressed in green and carried sweet peas and roses and the latter wore yellow and carried roses and snap dragons. The bride wore white satin and carried an armful of roses and lilies of the valley.

Burley Control Plan Not Completed

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration in Washington has not completed the details of the burley tobacco marketing plan and may not have the contracts in form to present to the growers before January 1st, according to information received from the Adjustment Department by County Agent P. E. Bird. "No marketing agreement has been reached with the manufacturers and so far as I know there is no plan for reimbursing burley growers who sell before the marketing plan goes into effect as was done in the flue cured territory. Therefore, my advice to growers would be that they withhold their tobacco from the market until the contract is signed up if they can possibly do so," said Mr. Bird.

National Forest A Benefit To Nearby Owners

Residents on lands adjoining or near to the Unaka National Forest have the privilege of securing free dead or down wood including chestnut from nearby Government lands. They are, of course, subject to certain regulations such as being careful to prevent fires, and using the material obtained strictly for home use. The wood may be used as fuel, posts, lumber, or any other domestic purpose.

Most owners of mountain land having adjoining farms are not securing any income from the wooded areas except fuel or other dead wood. Many are now preferring to dispose of their mountain land to the Government and still secure free wood from such areas by getting a free permit.

The Government's policy of such free disposal is based on the fact that the elimination of dead or down wood from woods land is an actual benefit to the growing conditions and a reduction of the fire hazard, and at the same time a help to nearby residents who may lack a source of dead wood. Free permits may be secured from the Forest Rangers at Damascus, Virginia and Elizabethton, Tennessee.

ed to him either by blood or marriage and gave them the tenderest and most affectionate care.

It was but natural that a man of Dr. Sherrill's type should take a deep interest in all that pertained to the uplift of humanity, and so he was actively and prominently identified with the religious, fraternal, civic and business interests of the town and county. He was one of the outstanding members of the Marion Baptist church and gave freely and unstintingly of his time, his talents and his money to advance the interests of his church. At the time of his death, he was a member of the Board of Deacons, the chairman of the finance committee and the teacher of a large class of ladies in the Sunday School.

Funeral services were held from the Marion Baptist church Wednesday morning at ten o'clock in charge of the pastor, Rev. W. H. Carter, assisted by Rev. H. J. Rhyne, pastor of the Marion Lutheran church. Active pall bearers were some of Dr. Sherrill's associates on the Board of Deacons of the church, while members of the medical profession from all parts of Southwest Virginia acted as honorary pall bearers. The floral designs, which were of rare beauty, were borne by members of the Sunday School class he had taught so long and so faithfully. Following the services at the church, the body was laid to rest in the family plot in the cemetery of St. James' church, several miles south of Chilhowie.

Dr. Sherrill is survived by his widow, Dr. Carolyn A. Sherrill, and the following brothers and sisters: Jason Sherrill, of Beaver Dam, N. C.; Granville and Dudley Sherrill, of Tacoma, Washington; John Sherrill, of Boone, N. C.; Mrs. Louisa Sherrill, of Kansas, and Mrs. Vienna Edmisten, of Hickory, N. C. An adopted son, Mr. Thomas Sherrill, of Baltimore; two great-nieces, Misses Mary Helen and Blanche Hagaman, who made their home with him, and a number of other nieces and nephews also survive.

—about Cigarettes

Not so long ago practically all cigarettes were made by hand

Now, Chesterfields are made by high-speed machines that turn out 750 cigarettes a minute, and the cigarettes are practically not touched by hand.

BY the use of long steel ovens—drying machines of the most modern type—and by aging the leaf tobacco for 30 months—like wine is aged—Chesterfield tobacco is milder and tastes better.

Only pure cigarette paper—the best made—is used for Chesterfield.

And to make sure that everything that goes into Chesterfield is just right, expert chemists test all materials that are used in any way in the manufacture. Chesterfields are made and packed in clean, up-to-date factories, where the air is changed every 4½ minutes. The moisture-proof package, wrapped in Du Pont's No. 300 Cellophane—the best made—reaches you just as if you went by the factory door.

In a letter to us, an eminent scientist says:
"Chesterfield Cigarettes are just as pure as the water you drink."

"Chesterfield cigarettes are just as pure as drink"
